Swiss Taxation

The following statements and discussions of certain Swiss tax considerations relevant to the purchase, ownership and disposition of the Complex Products are of a general nature only and do not address all potential tax consequences of an investment in the Complex Product under Swiss law. This summary is based on treaties, laws, regulations, rulings and decisions currently in effect, all of which are subject to change. It does not address the tax consequences of the Complex Products in any jurisdiction other than Switzerland.

Tax treatment depends on the individual tax situation of each investor and may be subject to change.

Potential investors will, therefore, need to consult their own tax advisors to determine the special tax consequences of the purchase, ownership and sale or other disposition of a Complex Product. In particular, the precise tax treatment of a holder of a Complex Product needs to be determined with reference to the applicable law and practice at the relevant time.

The investors shall be liable for all current and future taxes and duties as a consequence of an investment in Complex Products. The income tax treatment as depicted below is applicable to individual persons with tax residence in Switzerland and private assets. Withholding tax and stamp taxes are applicable to all investors; however, specific rules apply with respect to certain types of investors and transactions.

No withholding tax (Verrechnungssteuer).

Secondary market transactions are subject to securities transfer stamp tax (0.15%) for Swiss resident investors. [TK-Code 22]

The Interest Payment Amounts are subject to income tax for Swiss resident private investors.

The Issuer expressly disclaims all liability in respect of any tax implications.

II. Profit and Loss Prospects

Profit Prospects

The Complex Products allow the holders to receive periodical Interest Payment Amounts based on the development of the Reference Rate (i.e., a variable rate of interest). The Interest Rate will at least be equal to the Minimum Interest Rate.

Loss Prospects

As the Reference Rate is subject to fluctuations, the Interest Payment Amounts payable in respect of Complex Products are uncertain and may be substantially lower than the interest payment amounts that would be payable under conventional fixed rate debt securities of the Issuer with a comparable term. Any principal protection will not be applicable if the Complex Products are redeemed before the Final Redemption Date. See below, section III. Important Risks for Investors.

Calculation Examples of the Interest Rate

Reference Rate on the relevant Interest Determination Date:	Interest Rate for the corresponding Interest Period:
4.00% p.a.	4.00% p.a. (i.e. the Reference Rate)
1.50% p.a.	2.40% p.a. (floored, i.e. the Minimum Interest Rate)
-0.20% p.a.	2.40% p.a. (floored, i.e. the Minimum Interest Rate)

The above table shows an example for illustrative purposes only. During the term of the Complex Products, additional risks and other factors may influence the market value of the Complex Products. As a consequence, the pricing in the secondary market may differ significantly from the above table.

III. Important Risks for Investors

Important Risks

Issuer Risk

Investors bear the Issuer risk. The Complex Products' retention of value is dependent not only on the development of the value of the Reference Rate, but also on the creditworthiness of Credit Suisse AG, which may change over the term of the Complex Products. Furthermore, the Issuer's ability to fulfill its obligations under the Complex Products may be affected by certain other factors, including liquidity risks, market risks, credit risks, cross-border and foreign exchange risks, operational risks, legal and regulatory risks and competition risks.

The Complex Products are direct, unconditional, unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of Credit Suisse AG and are not covered by any compensation or insurance scheme (such as a bank deposit protection scheme). If Credit Suisse AG were to become insolvent, claims of investors in Complex Products would rank equally in right of payment with all other unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of Credit Suisse AG, except such obligations given priority by law. In such a case, investors in Complex Products may suffer a loss of all or a portion of their investment therein, irrespective of any favourable development of the other value determining factors, such as the performance of the Reference Rate.

Credit Suisse AG is licensed as a bank pursuant to the Swiss Federal Act on Banks and Saving Banks and as a security dealer pursuant to the Swiss Federal Act on Stock Exchanges and Securities Trading and is subject to supervision by FINMA.

Product Risk

The Complex Products involve substantial risks and are suitable only for investors who have the knowledge and experience in financial and business matters necessary to enable them to evaluate the risks and merits of an investment in Complex Products.

Prospective investors should:

- ensure that they understand the nature of the risks posed by, and the extent of their exposure under, the Complex Products;
- make all pertinent inquiries they deem necessary without relying on the Issuer or any of its affiliates or officers or employees;
- consider the suitability of the Complex Products as an investment in light of their own circumstances, investment objectives, tax position and financial condition;
- consider carefully all the information set forth in the legally binding Terms and Conditions as well as all other sections of the Prospectus (including any documents incorporated by reference therein);
- consult their own legal, tax, accounting, financial and other professional advisors to assist them determining the suitability of Complex Products for them as an investment.

Risk of Total Loss

Although the Complex Products provide for a fixed Final Redemption Amount, investors may lose a part or all of their investment therein. The Complex Products provide for a fixed redemption amount equal to 100% of the Denomination (i.e., the Final Redemption Amount), which investors in such Complex Products will receive on the Final Redemption Date (so long as not early redeemed). Accordingly (but subject to the immediately succeeding sentence), an investor's risk of loss is limited to the difference between the Issue Price (or, if different, the price such investor paid for the relevant Complex Product) and the Final Redemption Amount. Nevertheless, investors in such Complex Products may lose some or all of their investment therein (including the Final Redemption Amount), in particular if Credit Suisse AG were to become insolvent or otherwise unable to fulfil all or part of its obligations under such Complex Products. In addition, if an investor acquires such a Complex Product at a price that is higher than the Final Redemption Amount, such investor should be aware that the Final Redemption Amount does not fluctuate with the purchase price paid for the Complex Product. Furthermore, even though such Complex Products provide for a fixed Final Redemption Amount, this does not mean that the market value of such a Complex Product will ever be, or that an investor in such a Complex Product will ever be able to sell such Complex Product for an amount, equal to or above the Final Redemption Amount.

Investors should also be aware that the Final Redemption Amount is only payable by the Issuer on the Final Redemption Date. If such Complex Products are early redeemed, investors may receive a redemption amount that is considerably lower than the Final Redemption Amount that would have otherwise been received.

Complex Products are unsecured obligations

Complex Products are direct, unconditional, unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of Credit Suisse AG and are not covered by any compensation or insurance scheme (such as a bank deposit protection scheme). If Credit Suisse AG were to become insolvent, claims of investors in Complex Products would rank equally in right of payment with all other unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of Credit Suisse AG, except such obligations given priority by law. In such a case, investors in Complex Products may suffer a loss of all or a portion of their investment therein, irrespective of any favourable development of the other value determining factors, such as, in the case of Complex Products, the performance of the Reference Rate.

Unpredictable Market Value of the Complex Products

The market value of, and expected return on, Complex Products may be influenced by a number of factors, some or all of which may be unpredictable (and which may offset or magnify each other), such as (i) supply and demand for Complex Products, (ii) the value and volatility of the Reference Rate, (iii) economic, financial, political and regulatory or judicial events that affect Credit Suisse AG, the Reference Rate or financial markets generally, (iv) interest and yield rates in the market generally, (v) the time remaining until the Final Redemption Date and (vi) Credit Suisse AG's creditworthiness.

Trading Market for Complex Products

The trading market for Complex Products may be limited, or may never develop at all, which may adversely impact the market value of such Complex Products or the ability of the holder thereof to sell such Complex Products.

Exposure to the Performance of the Reference Rate

Complex Products represent an investment linked to the performance of the Reference Rate and potential investors should note that any amount payable under the Complex Products will depend upon the performance of the Reference Rate. Potential investors in Complex Products should be familiar with the behaviour of the Reference Rate and thoroughly understand how the performance of the Reference Rate may affect payments under, or the market value of, Complex Products. The past performance of the Reference Rate is not indicative of future performance. The market value of a Complex Product may be adversely affected by postponement or alternative provisions for the Reference Rate.

Exchange Rate Risks

The Settlement Currency of a Complex Product may not be the currency of the home jurisdiction of the investor therein. Exchange rates between currencies are determined by factors of supply and demand in the international currency markets, which are in particular influenced by macro-economic factors, speculation and central bank and government intervention (including the imposition of currency controls and restrictions). Therefore, fluctuations in exchange rates may adversely affect the market value of a Complex Product or the value of the Reference Rate.

Broad Discretionary Authority of the Calculation Agent

The Calculation Agent has broad discretionary authority to make various determinations and adjustments under Complex Products, any of which may have an adverse effect on the market value thereof or amounts payable or other benefits to be received thereunder. Any such discretion exercised by, or any calculation made by, the Calculation Agent (in the absence of manifest error) shall be binding on Credit Suisse AG and all holders of the Complex Products.

In making calculations and determinations with regard to the Complex Products, there may be a difference of interest between the investors and the Calculation Agent. The Calculation Agent is required to act in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner but does not have any obligations of agency or trust for any investors and has no fiduciary obligations towards them. In particular the Calculation Agent and its affiliated entities may have interests in other capacities (such as other business relationships and activities).

This risk disclosure notice cannot disclose all the risks. Therefore, potential investors in Complex Products should consult the latest version of the 'Special Risks in Securities Trading' risk disclosure brochure (the 'Risk Disclosure Brochure') and the Prospectus of which the Terms and Conditions of the Complex Products form a part.

The latest version of the Risk Disclosure Brochure can be obtained, free of charge, from the head office of Credit Suisse AG in Zurich, by calling +41 44 333 2144 or via facsimile no: +41 44 333 8403, or accessed via Internet at the Swiss Bankers Association's website: www.swissbanking.org (under the following path: www.swissbanking.org/en/services/library/studies-reports).

In connection with this Complex Product, the Issuer and/or its affiliates may pay to third parties, including affiliates, remunerations (distribution fee) that may be factored into the terms of this Complex Product. The Issuer and/or its affiliates may also offer such remunerations to third parties in the form of a discount on the price of the product. Receipt or potential receipt of such remunerations may lead to a conflict of interests. Internal revenue allocation may lead to a similar effect. Further information can be found under "Product Description". Finally, third parties or the investor's bank may impose a commission/brokerage fee in connection with the purchase/sale of or subscription to the Complex Product. Investors in the Complex Product may request further information from their bank/relationship manager.

Where not explicitly otherwise stated, the Issuer has no duty to invest in the Reference Rate and an investor in Complex Products has no recourse to the Reference Rate. The issue price of the Complex Products will reflect the customary fees and costs charged on the level of the Reference Rate. Certain built-in costs are likely to adversely affect the value of the Complex Products.

The Complex Products are complex structured financial instruments and involve a high degree of risk. They are intended only for investors who understand and are capable of assuming all risks involved. Before entering into any transaction involving the Complex Products, a potential investor should determine if the Complex Products suit his or her particular circumstance and should independently assess (with his or her professional advisors) the specific risks (maximum loss, currency risks, etc.) and the legal, regulatory, credit, tax and accounting consequences.
